Journeyman printers who worked in the Williamsburg printing office (1751-52) of William Hunter (230).

Father and son team of journeyman printers who worked in the Williamsburg printing office of William Hunter in 1751 and 1752. The Johnsons were evidently transient figures as Hunter's office journal records only the payment of their salaries and their room & board charges in a nearby tenement. No other information concerning them has been yet found.
